HILL WILL MARRY.

Mrs. Fanny Iverson, of Atlanta, is the Lucky Lady.

The Acquaintance of the Couple is Not a Long One—Mrs. Iverson Comes From a Wealthy Family.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—The Advertiser says this morning: David B. Hill's bachelor days are numbered. When he returns to Washington in December to resume his place in the senate of the United States, it is altogether probable that he will have a partner with him. Those who keep track of the social life of the national capital have heard all about it. The senator is going to marry. It is said that the day is set, but that part has not got out. The lady who, it is reported, has won the clever politician's heart is a southern beauty. Her name is Mrs. Fannie Iverson. Her home is in Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Iverson is a widow on the sunny side of thirty. She retains all of the beauty of young womanhood. Mrs. Iverson can hardly be termed a society woman in the ordinary acceptance of the term, though coming of an illustrious and wealthy family. Senator Hill's visit to Atlanta, the occasion of his first meeting Mrs. Iverson, was made with Governor Flower and a number of other prominent politicians of New York, to secure the world's fair for this city. A later visit, when the acquaintance was renowed and mutual friends in Atlanta began prophecying that something more would come of it, was made by Senator Hill upon the occasion of the unveiling of Henry W. Grady's monument last fall. The senator expressed great admiration for her, and she in return did not hesitate to say that the bachelor senator was a delightfully companionable gentleman. Of course she denied that there had been anything like the popping of the all-important question. Mrs. Iverson has three children, all boys, a snug little fortune, and many friends in the fashionable world. The senator has a fine home in the suburbs of Albany for which he has no use as an old bachelor. It has been decorated and furnished within the last month and taste is exhibited in the selections.

BIG ROBBERY.

Thieves Take $35,000 in Cash From the Residence of Captain Wheaton, Near Cape May.

SEA ISLE CITY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The whole county of Cape May is greatly excited over the robbery of the residence of Capt. Elijah Wheaton, at Tuckahoe, some time during the last week. The amount taken was $35,000 in cash. Captain Wheaton left home last Tuesday for a short visit to friends and upon his return discovered that the money to the amount of $35,000, which had been kept in a bureau drawer, was missing. Others sums of money in the house were left untouched, the thief being satisfied with the first haul. A prominent Philadelphia detective has been at work on the case, but has thus far failed to find the slightest clue to the robber or the money. Members of the family believe that the robbery was committed by someone thoroughly acquainted with the residence and the habits and movements of the inmates. Captain Wheaton is an owner of large shipping interests and is very wealthy. The disappearance of so big a sum of money has caused a sensation in Tuckahoe and everybody is on a still hunt trying to find the thief.

MORE EARTHQUAKES.

Heavy Shocks Felt at Numerous Points in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Heavy shocks of earthquake were felt here at 4:45 o'clock yesterday morning and also at numerous points throughout California. The shock was very distinct and for a while the community was terror stricken. The jar was felt in every house in the city and a number of persons were thrown out of bed. In some parts of the city men and women ran out in the streets with nothing but their night gowns on and it was with difficulty they could be persuaded to return to their homes. The glass in hundreds of windows was broken.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

The Yellow River Breaks Loose and Inundates a Large Area.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 14.—The City of Peking arrived here yesterday bringing Oriental advices dated Hong Kong, Oct. 19, and Yokohama, 29, that the Yellow river had broken loose again inundating the districts of Chang Chin, Chi Tung, Ching Chen, Chang Ghan, Chou Ping, Poa Shing, and possibly others, embracing a large area. The devastation is frightful, and the loss of life terrific. It is said that half of the population have perished.

Cholera Again.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—It is reported that there are five cases of cholera on board the Allan S. S. Circassian, now off Father Point, and that orders have been given to stop her at the Grosse Isle quarantine. No authentic news has been received there, but Dr. La Chappelle, of the provincial health society, says he has received a dispatch that there are five cases on board, but will not say what they are.

Margaret Will Not Marry Again.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 14.—Margaret Mather was seen at her hotel yesterday by a reporter and asked about her reported marriage. She said the report was absolutely without foundation, but that it was no surprise to her, as she had already been married several times, according to stories circulated.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Five Men are Killed and Several Injured

Engineer Cowie Hurled Against Rocks and Every Bone in His Body Broken —Thrown One Hundred Yards.

READING, PA., Nov. 14.—A frightful boiler explosion occurred on the Reading road, a short distance above Schuylkill Haven, about midnight last night. Five men were killed and several injured. The killed were: Engineer Wm. Cowie and his fireman, Wm. Moyer; Engineer Harry Allison, Conductor Kendrick and another man, whose name has not yet been learned. Michael Dobbins, a brakeman was badly injured. The engine had just finished making a shift and coupled up to a train. The moment the steam was applied the explosion followed. Cowie was hurled against the rocks and every bone in his body was crushed. Moyer was hurled one hundred yards away into a field. The others lay near the wreck. The engine was No. 563 and belonged to the freight trade. On Sunday she was put on the coal trade and at the time of the accident was on her way to Palo Alto. The locomotive is a complete wreck. Cowie and Moyer belonged to another crew and were dead heading it home to Palo Alto. The others belonged to the engine which exploded.

MARRIED A NEGRO.

A Prominent Cincinnati Girl Wedded to Her Father's Butler—Refuses to Part From Him.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 14.—Last January Julia Kreil, the daughter of a well known Cincinnati citizen, left her home for the ostensible purpose of visiting friends in Washington. Instead, however, she came west, and on her arrival in Chicago was met by Howard O. Matthews, a negro, who for some time had been butler at the Kriel household in Cincinnati. The couple at once proceeded to Denver, where on the evening of January 26 they were married by the Rev. Cornelius Kiefer. The marriage of the couple was kept a profound secret, the pair living in a small house in a quiet portion of the city. During the Knights Templar conclave several Ohioans recognized Matthews, who is employed as porter in the Brown Palace hotel. He told of his escapade, and the girl's family were soon notified. About this time Mrs. Matthews wrote her parents that she had married a well known Washington official. An investigation was made, and the truth of the report verified. Every effort has been made to secure a separation, but the girl is thoroughly infatuated with her dusky lover, and the two refuse to be parted.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Labonus Lupkin Comes Near Meeting His Death.

Saturday evening, about dusk, Labonus Lupkin, an Adams township farmer, started for his home with his team. Lupkin was drunk and when he reached the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on the Piqua wagon road, he did not hear No. 9, which was coming at a high rate of speed. The engine struck the wagon just as the horses and front wheels were on the track. The outfit was demolished. Both horses were instantly killed, the wagon smashed to kindling wood and the farmer thrown high in the air. The train was stopped and it was found that Lupkin was not killed, but that the flesh had been almost entirely stripped off his face. He presented a frightful spectacle. No bones were broken, however, and the injured man was taken to St Joseph hospital. He will be disfigured for life. It is stated that Lupkin lost a leg at the same place by a similar accident five years ago. Whisky has been the cause of all the trouble.

MURDERED.

A Minnesota Farmer Found Dead and His Money Missing.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 14.—A despatch from Edmonton says that yesterday Peter Skamdt, who arrived on Thursday from Minnesota, was found dead on a trail leading south, with a bullet hole through his head. He had also been robbed of a large sum of money, the proceeds of the sale of his farm and stock in Minnesota. His companion, Ole Mickleson, who arrived with him, has disappeared.

"LONG LIVE ANARCHY,"

Is the Cry of a French Soldier as He Strikes Down an Officer.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Much anxiety has been caused by an exhibition of anarchy at the army. While troops were waiting at the Compaign station a private insulted and struck an officer, felling him to the ground and crying "long live anarchy," "down with the army and its officers." It is believed that his purpose was to cause an outbreak in favor of anarchy. He will probably be shot.

Stevenson Won't be at Huntington.

(Huntington Democrat.)

Governor Gray telegraphs the committee on speakers, for Monday evening, consisting of Slack, Kintz and Biliter, that he is sorry he cannot be present at the jollification, but that he is suffering from a severe cold and sore lungs. Vice President-elect Stevenson telegraphs his hearty thanks for the invitation extended him and says he regrets very much that he cannot be here on account of another engagement.

JUBILANT DEMOCRATS

Will Jollify in New York City December 3.

President-Elect Cleveland Will be the Guest of Honor at the Banquet—Speeches by Prominent Men.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—President-elect Cleveland is to be the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Reform club at the Madison Square Garden assembly rooms Saturday evening, December 3. Then the club members and their friends propose to have a grand jollification over the triumph achieved on Tuesday last. Though the plans are crude, it seems safe to prophesy that a more distinguished body of democrats never gathered in this or any other city, than will assemble about the board three weeks hence. Though the speakers have not all been decided upon, it is expected that besides the president-elect and the vice president-elect, Gov. William D. Russell, of Massachusetts; ex-Gov. James E. Campbell, of Ohio; Speaker Crisp, of the house of representatives; Senator John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky; Senator David B. Hill, Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Governor Boies, of Iowa, and others will be asked to deliver addresses.

CAMPBELL GOING TO NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. The World prints the following special from Columbus, Ohio: Ex-Gov. James E. Campbell will remove, with his family, to New York city, December 1. He has taken a house on Seventy-ninth street. The ex-governor says that the present arrangement is only for six months. He will maintain his citizenship in Ohio and vote in Butler county. For some years past his business arrangements have compelled him to spend a great deal of his time in New York. The enterprise he has now on hand more than ever demands his presence at the metropolis. Politics has no part whatever in the ex-governor's determination. He was house hunting in New York last August but could not find a house to suit.

OFFICE TALK IN NEW YORK.

Don Dickinson Says There is Nothing He Wants.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—It is stated that President-elect Cleveland has already begun to think about his cabinet. All forecasts so far printed have made Mr. Cleveland laugh. A friend of Mr. Whitney said Saturday that the latter would not be minister to England. Mr. Cleveland had among his callers Saturday Gen. Patrick A. Collins, of Boston, who saw Mr. Cleveland on Thursday last. This is regarded by many as indicating that General Collins is in the rank of cabinet possibilities, and close up where the band is.

Don M. Dickinson is taking a rest after his campaign. Mr. Dickinson said yesterday that he was not a candidate for any office in the gift of a president, at home or abroad.

"Some people may assert, said he, "that it is in bad taste to decline a thing before it has been tendered, but Mr. Cleveland understands me perfectly on that point. I will take nothing. My ambition is entirely in my profession."

Since the announcement of the candidacy of Edward Murphy, jr., for the senate, politicians have come to accept his election as a matter of course.

W. Bourke Cochran said yesterday that he was not a candidate, that he was satisfied with his present position, and that Mr. Murphy would be the senator if he wanted to be.

There is increasing interest in the future relations of Mr. Cleveland and Senator Hill. Most of the latter's friends, when questioned about it say they know nothing whatever about it.

Democratic headquarters are still nominally open. The campaign committee will conclude all business next week. Colonel Tracey, the head of the press bureau, and Sergeant-at-Arms Swords, are still in charge of the ground floor.

CHAIRMAN HOLMAN

Calls a Meeting of the Appropriation Committee for November 28.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Chairman Holman, of the committee on appropriations of the hououse of representatives, today issued a call for the committee to meet in Washington at 12 o'clock, November 28. It is the intention of Chairman Holman to prepare the appropriation bills as fast as possible with a view to securing early consideration by congress. To this end the clerks of the appropriation committee have already collaborated the rough estimate received from the executive departments, so that when the committee assembles work on the appropriation bills can be commenced at once. It is the desire of Chairman Holman to present and pass several of the more unimportant bills before the holiday adjournment in December.

MURDERED AND CREMATED.

Two Sons of the Victim Arrested for the Crime.

MORRISON, Ill., Nov. 14.—The murder and cremation of M. Swarthout, a wealthy farmer, has created great excitement throughout the country. Yesterday Swarthout's two sons were arrested for the crime, and it is feared they will be lynched. Swarthout lived in Lindon township, eight miles south of here. Thursday evening he came to town but did not return. Search was begun and in the ashes of a straw pile on his farm his partly consumed body was found. An examination showed that he had been murdered and robbed and the body had been stuffed in the straw pile. The straw was then set on fire. He was known to have carried a large sum of money. The evidence pointed to his two sons.

PHILANTHROPIST DEAD.

Amos Shinkle Passes Away at His Covington Home.

Only Last Thursday He Celebrated His Golden Wedding—His Estate Valued at $2,000,000.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—Amos Shinkle, esq., the Covington philanthropist, died last night at 9:30 o'clock, at the family mansion on Second street, in Covington. On last Thursday he and his estimable wife celebrated their golden wedding, and he then seemed to be in high spirits and enjoying the best of health. About 1 o'clock yesterday morning he was taken ill, and Drs. Carson, Thomas and Kelly were called, and remained with him until the time of his death. By the death of Amos Shinkle Covington loses one of its best and leading citizens and a man who has been a public benefactor. To him the people of Covington owe a debt of gratitude that they can never repay. Mr. Shinkle was aged 47. He was born in Brown county, Ohio, of poor parents. When he had reached the age of eighth-teen years he said to his father: "I can now make my own living" and left home with just twenty-five cents in his pocket. He went up the Big Sandy river and floated logs down to Higginsport, Ohio, where they were sawed into lumber at his father's mill. He came to Covington about the year 1846 and went into the coal business. In 1865 he went into the banking business, and established the First National bank. Before this he built the Covington gas works, and was president of the company when he died. He was a prime mover in the building of the Cincinnati-Covington suspension bridge. His estate is estimated to be worth $2,000,000.

JUDGE MERRIMAN.

Death Comes to Him After a Painful Sickness.

Brief Sketch of a Brilliant Life—Born in Poverty, He Rises to a High Judicial Position.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 14.—Soon after 2 o'clock this morning Chief Justice Augustus S. Merriman died at his home here of diabetes after several months of critical illness. He was born September 15, 1830, in what was then part of Buncombe county, and early in life after having recieved only a common school education, showed high ability. He served in the state legislature and was in the state militia service during the first months of the war. Then he became solicitor and later judge, resigning in 1865 owing to some conflict with General Canby. He came here and practiced law in 1872 and after a remarkable contest he was elected United Sates senator in 1883, was appointed associate justice and two years ago was both appointed and elected chief justice. He will be given a state funeral here.

DEGENERATING.

The Queen of Spain Will Witness a Bull Fight.

MADRID, Nov. 14.—The queens of Spain and Portugal will be present at a bull fight on Wednesday. The queen of Portugal is anxious to see a bull fight and the duke of Veragua has promised eight bulls of his famous Andalusian breed for the occasion. This is the first time Queen Christina, of Spain, has attended such an entertainment since the death of her husband. The little king of Spain and the queen regent, with the king and queen of Portugal, yesterday witnesed from the palace balconies the grand municipal Columbus calvacade, including a representation of the surrender of Granada and the Columbus caravels, tableaux of Franciscan monks, etc.

SHOT HIMSELF.

A Young Minister Takes His Own Life.

ORANGE, Mass., Nov. 14—Rev. G. H. Harris, aged twenty-two, pastor of the Universal church, North Orange, committed suicide on Saturday night, by shooting. He was unmarried and lived alone. He was not missed until his congregation was seated in church yesterday forenoon. A messenger found him dead in his study with a revolver in his hand. Mr. Harris was ordained last year. He was a native of Pennsylvania.

His Second Campaign.

THEY PARTED.

The Money Went to a Crap Shooter and the Original Owner Went Broke.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 14.—John Hill, until a week ago a street car conductor on the Broadway line, New York, who recently came into possession of $5,000 through the death of a relative, has lost the entire amount. He started out last Monday to tour the country and got rid of $1,400 before reaching St. Louis. He fell in with a variety actor and they got drunk together. The actor got $375 of his fortune and the next day Ed Breese, a notorious local character, won the residue of the $5,000 shooting craps with Hill. Breese used loaded dice. Hill is penniless and naturally very penitent.

Another Riot.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Nov. 14.—This town is in a fever of excitement over a riot between colored people and strikers, in which several were hurt. More trouble is expected this evening.

His Second Campaign.

DIVIDED THEY STAND.

The Democratic Factions of Texas Will Not Unite.

The Fight Between the Clark and Hogg Factions Only Just Commenced—It Will Be Bitter and Prolonged.

WACO, Tex., Nov. 14. — Chairman Matlock, of the Clark state democratic executive committee, has called the committee to meet in this city next Saturday. In conversation with a reporter Judge Clark said: "The separation at Houston was upon principles and I suppose each side is determined to adhere to their respective views. I know that our side is. We parted company with the Hogg people because they have thrown democracy behind them and were pandering to every ism that made its appearance under the governor's teaching. The state had been drifting into socialism, not gradually, but rapidly. The question which confronted us at Houston was whether we should rescure the principles of democracy from oblivion or take our places in the ranks of the commune. We chose the former, realizing that the fight would be bitter and prolonged. In truth it has barely begun. We are in it to stay and, while public office is our goal, we are bound to win."

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Sixteenth Annual Convention Begins Tomorrow.

Nothing of National Importance Will Come Up—All the Old Officers Will be Re-Elected.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 14.—The delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the Knights of Labor, which is to be held in this city commencing tomorrow, are coming in slowly. The greater number are looked for today. Those who arrived yesterday were Hugh Cavanaugh, of Cincinnati, John Devlin, of Detroit, Charles Martin, of Toledo, George Murray and T. B. Maguire, of New York city. The Baltimore and Ohio train, which had on board Master Workman T. V. Powderly and a large number of eastern delegates, was to have arrived last evening, but it was nine hours behind time and did not arrive until early this morning. A prominent member of the order said to a reporter this morning: "It is quite likely that all of the old officers will be re-elected without any opposition. Some time ago there was talk of Powderly resigning at this meeting and that a successor would have to be elected. This is not the case, for Powderly does not have to resign. His term, as well as those of all the officers of the organization, expire at this meeting. Should Powderly, however, refuse to allow his name to go before the convention for re-election it is possible that his successor would be A. W. Wright, of Toronto, as he is one of the brainiest men in the order."

John W. Hayes, the national secretary, is already here. A reporter had a long talk with him this morning in which the labor situation generally was gone over by him. "Our convention this year will do nothing more than to indorse what has been done by previous assemblies," said he. "I know of nothing of national importance that will come up. The constitution will be changed, but not in effect, however, but the constitution as it now stands is too long, cumbersome and complicated. It will be boiled down, as you newspaper men would say. Yet it will not be changed a particle. We think that by putting it in a more brief form it will be better udderstood by our men."

THE DUKE'S FUNERAL.

Remains Placed Among the Tombs of His Ancestors at Blenheim.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The sun shone brightly today as the Duke of Marlborough was borne to his final resting place among the tombs of his ancestors at Blenheim. Lord Randolph Churchill, the Duke of Abercorn, brother of Albert, the divorced wife of the late duke, and Lord Londonderry, who was always very friendly to the deceased nobleman, were present. The Marchioness of Blandford, the divorced wife of Marlborough, was not there, the Duke of Abercorn being assumed to represent her. The Duchess of Marlborough wore deep mourning and she was deeply veiled. She seemed entirely overcome and her appearance verified the statement that she had been prostrated with grief ever since the death of the duke. The services were those of the church of England, the vicar of Woodstock officiating. There was a large attendance of gentry and tenantry from the surrounding country and they testified by their evident grief to the popularity of the late duke among his neighbors. A number of the personal and business friends of the duke were also present from London.

Death of Lysander Thompson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. — Lysander Thompson, the veteran actor, who has been confined in the asylum pavillion of the Bellevue hospital since the 4th instant, died in that institution last night. He was fifty years old and leaves a widow and three children. He had played many prominent parts in plays produced by A. M. Palmer.

WAS IT FORGERY?

The Signature on a Note in Question.

Sensational Suit in 'Squire Wilkinson's Court—Police Court Cullings—Burglars.

In police court this morning there were two drunks. Wm. Nelson was arrested Saturday evening by Officer McCroy on Columbia street. He was dreadfully drunk and was fined $1 and costs.

The other drunk was Wm. Fahner, who lives on Glasgow avenue. On Saturday evening Fahner and his wife were up town buying some groceries. It is said that both got drunk, but at any rate Fahner was the drunkest of the two. They started home with their basket and became quarrelsome on the way. When they reached White's field Fahner wanted to go one way and his wife the other. A rough and tumble fight followed and Mrs. Fahner was badly worsted. The groceries were scattered in all directions. Officer Grim was called and saved Mrs. Fahner from further damage by taking her husband off to the station. He was fined $1 and cost.

In 'Squire France's court Charles Archer et al has brought an attachment suit against Doris Armett, claiming $65 on a bill of furniture. The case is set for hearing on the 17th at 9 o'clock.

'Squire Tancy's constable has as yet not succeeded in bringing in any of the parties engaged in the racket down on Glasgow avenue last week. Four warrants are out but no arrests made.

'Squire Wilkinson has an important case set for 3 o'clock this afternoon. It is the suit of Mary L. Newhouse vs. Lizzie McClerren for $175, amount claimed on a note. Mrs. McClerren is a daughter of Charles Strack and wife of Jesse McClerren, the hack driver. It is likely that some sensational developments will come out during the trial. Mrs. McClerren, it is said, will endeavor to prove that her name on the note is a forgery. The trouble grew out of a buggy which either McClerren or his wife purchased from Mrs. Nowhduse's husband about a year ago. Mr. Newhouse is now in state's prison on a two year's sentence. He was sent up about six months ago for forging a note of $800 on the Rothchilds, of this city. Newhouse was at that time engaged in the buggy business. Benjamin Harper is attorney for the plaintiff and George Loutett is for defense.

The proprietor of the Wayne stables is getting somewhat worried over a horse which he has in his keeping. It is the one taken from the fellow, Strayer, who was recently arrested upon suspicion of being a horse thief, and is now in jail. No one has come to claim the horse and no one seems to know anything about the fellow arrested.

On Saturday evening some miscreants broke into the tool house at Keller's stone yard and made away with a number of tools and emery stones. It is thought that the work was done by some professional cracksmen, who may be in want of tools for house breaking purposes, or perhaps safe cracking.

The county commissioners were in the country today on bridge business.

The November term of the circuit court begins next Monday. The court is not in session this week.

Ella G. Morganthaler has filed her oath and bond as administratrix of the estate of Peter Morganthaler, deceased.

David B. Carey brings suit in the circuit court against Joseph D. Griswold and Edward Buford for $100 due on note. J. R. Bittenger is attorney for plaintiff.

The case of Bower vs. Babcock was settled today without trial.

Jennie Kirkendall, through her attorney, Charles Hays, brings suit in the superior court for divorce from Jacob G. Kirkendall. She is thirty-three years of age and the defendant forty-five, and they were married in 1887. She charges cruelty and adultery and asks that she be allowed to resume her maiden name, Jennie Ensley.

In the superior court the Tri-State Building and Loan association brings suit to foreclose mortgage against Charles Vanderford. Demand, $800. Vesey & Heaton, attorneys.

Moses Teif and Mary Yerrod, Michael Fick and Mary Seegor, Frank Speidel and Rose Kennan have been licensed to wed.

GRESHAM FOR PRESIDENT.

The Populists Claim He Will be With Them Four Years Hence.

(Indianapolis sun.)

"What do you think about Gresham's action in voting for Cleveland?" Secretary Vincent, of the third party state committee, was asked.

"Well, Judge Gresham had good reasons for doing that, no doubt. He is in sympathy with the people's party movement and would have come over to us had not the republican party flooded the country with circulars bearing an interview which he gave four years ago and which was construed to be a sanction of the principles of protection. Judge Gresham is with us and we would accept his leadership, I think, should he desire to head our ticket four years from now. He may be classed as an independent in politics, and if such eminent 'floppers' as he can be induced to identify themselves with the third party so much the better for us. And, by the way, I like the name 'populist' and prefer it to the name by which the third party is now known."

Killed a Minister.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 14.—Rev. Dr. J. R. Moffett, pastor of the Baptist church in North Danville, and the recognized prohibition leader, who was shot by J. T. Clark, a lawyer and prominent democratic politician, last Friday, died Saturday morning at 2 o'clock.

STRETCHED HEMP.

Andrew Petrillo Hanged at 10:40 This Morning.

He Murdered His Brother-in-Law Seventeen Months Ago—Short History of the Crime.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 14.—Andrew Petrillo was hanged in the New Haven county jail this morning. The drop fell at 10:40 o'clock. At 10:55 the body was cut down and life pronounced extinct by the surgeons in attendance. The crime for which Petrillo was an inveterate gambler and made a great deal of money by successful "monte throwing." One of his victims was Michael Demo, his brother-in-law, who kept a saloon on Lafayette street, this city. Petrillo won from him repeatedly before Demo realized that he was being swindled. He resolved to get even and win some of his money back, so he engaged a professional gambler from New York to come to this city and play "monte" with Petrillo. The gambler came and Petrillo fell into the trap. The New Yorker was more skillful than he was and in one sitting won over $200 from him. Petrillo afterwards learned of the game Demo had put up on him and demanded his money back. Demo refused, whereupon Petrillo swore vengeance. On Saturday night, April 18, 1891, Petrillo met his brother-in-law on a street corner near his saloon and again demanded his money back. Demo again refused and Petrillo shot him through the heart, killing him instantly.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Many Called to the Last Sad Resting Place.

The remains of Chauncey Hart, who was killed on the Nickel Plate on Friday night, were shipped to Antwerp, Ohio, Sunday for interment. The coroner rendered a verdict of accidental death.

The remains of Miss Kate Burhenn, who died at Los Angeles, Cal., arrived in this city Saturday evening and were taken to the family home at No. 122 West Creighton avenue, from which place the funeral was held at 2:30 yesterday afternoon.

The funeral of the little child of Mr. and Mrs. James Gillie was held yesterday. It was private. Mr. and Mrs. Gillie have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

JUBILANT DEMOCRATS.

New Haven Will Have a Jollification Meeting This Evening.

A. R. Schnitker, one of the leading democrats of New Haven, was in the city today arranging for a grand democratic jollification meeting tonight at that pleasant village. The Hendricks and Jeffersonian clubs, of this city, have been invited to participate in the exercises and the latter club has promised to be out in full numbers. The Hendricks club will probably not go as a body, but a number of the members will be on hand. There will be a big parade, a bon-fire and speeches by several Fort Wayne orators, among the number being the Hon. S. M. Hench. All the residences along the line of march will be illuminated, and Stock's hall, where the speaking will take place, has been fittingly decorated for the occasion. Mr. Schnitker, in behalf of his fellow townsmen, extends an invitation to all political clubs, as well as individual citizens of this city to participate in the jollification, and New Haven will undoubtedly be crowded with people tonight as she never was before.

The game of foot ball which was played between the High school and Concordia College Juniors on Saturday was won by the later, by a score of 14 to 0. Throughout the game the college boys had the best of it. Brilliant plays were made by the quarter and half backs. Next Saturday there will be a game played between the same teams.

PARK PLACE.

A Pretty Name for the New Reservoir Park.

Water Turned in for the First Time Saturday—Construction and Plans for Beautifying.

On Saturday evening about six o'clock the water was turned into the new city water works reservoir, on the corner of Lafayette and Taber streets.

The event was significant. It has taken years of labor and thousands of dollars to complete the task of building the reservoir. Although the work of beautifying the surroundings is not completed, the main object of the undertakings, that of preparing a great storage place for a supply of water for city purposes, is completed.

With this object in view work was first begun as far back as 1880. The original contract was let to Messrs. Langhor & Baltes, who, after laboring at a disadvantage upon its construction by the city were allowed to throw up the contract. The reservoir was to fulfill the two-fold purpose of an extra water supply for use by the city in case of an emergency, and (to use a technical phrase,) for a head to pump against at the pumping station, the unequal pressure requirements of the city supply rendering it difficult to operate the machinery at the pumping station.

The reservoir site and the surroundings owned by the city includes a trifle less than twelve acres. Already the spot has won for itself the appropriate name of "Park Place" and it is the intention of the city to make it what the name indicate—a park.

The reservoir basin is situated on a mound whose total length, north and south, is some 120 feet and whose heighth is about sixty feet. The depth of the reservoir basin is fifty feet and its total capacity is 2,500,000 gallons. Around the top of the basin is a broad walk and an iron fence, neat in design, will be placed close to the rim. The sides of the basin, which slope towards the center at an angle of some forty-five degrees, are lined with brick and the bottom consists of a six-inch pavement of concrete with a smooth coat of plaster.

The view from the top of the mound, which is one hundred feet higher than the ground level at the court house, is a magnificent one. It affords a bird's eye view of the entire city and the line of the horizon extends to a point far distant. It is claimed by some to be the highest point in the state of Indiana.

The old reservoir upon the same site only had a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons and its construction did not meet with the city's requirements. The contract for the completion of the work was let to H. C. Howard, of Pittsburg, last April, and this gentleman has had a large force of men at work, under the foremanship of John Iten, ever since. The work was also under the supervision of Inspector Frank Iten, of the city water department. To Deputy City Engineer C. S. Brackenridge also is due great credit for the plans, specifications and engineering detail of the work and to City Engineer F. M. Randall.

But little more will be done on the reservoir this winter—in fact but little more needs to be done upon the basin, but the beautifying of the surroundings will be begun early next spring as soon as the weather permits. When this work is completed Park Place will be one of the most beautiful spots in the city. Directly west of the mound, in the excavation made to obtain earth for the embankment, will be turned all the waste water from the reservoir. This will form a beautiful lake 600 feet long, 300 feet wide and of an average depth of four feet. In the center of this lake will be built a small island upon which will be placed a fountain of handsome design. A number of small boats will be placed on the lake. The northeast and south sides of the reservoir mound will be terraced and sodded and many beautiful flowers planted. The whole park will be enclosed in an ornamental fence and a driveway for carriages built about the grounds. Upon the east side of the mound, at the foot of the steps leading to the top, will be built a pretty little arbor and gate. This gate will be unique in design and highly ornamental.

The total cost of the reservoir, including the land, will be $65,000, of which amount about $14,000 has been expended this summer.

Should an accident occur at the pump house the city can always rely upon a 2,500,000 gallon supply of pure water from the same source of supply now in use and having a presure of forty-five pounds.

Frank Mayo will appear at the Masonic Temple tonight in "Davy Crockett." "Mr. Mayo's impersonation of the honest backwoodsman is decidedly his best character, and interprets perfectly the rude manliness and brave generosity implied to the text. It is throughout a chivalrous, noble character. The homely pathos thrown into his avowal of love for Eleanor always wins high praise, while his devotion and bravery in withstanding the onset of the hungry wolves is so judiciously managed as to avoid the overacting into which a less accomplished actor would have lapsed. Mr. Mayo has made his part in this drama quite famous and has earned the applause not only of those who enjoy the pictures of pioneer life from early association, but of those who appreciate the high art in this drama in spite of their prejudice against pioneer life in general. The sentiment in this drama is honest and high-moral, without being maudlin."

THIS DAY IN THE PAST.

1492—Columbus first saw a potato! and on the same day as near as can be determined, his embassadors, on their return from the interior, first saw the Indians smoking tobacco; in fifty years the use of the latter had been established to some extent in every part of the civilized world, and the former long ago became of far more importance and value than all the gold and precious stones supplied by the New World.

INDIANAPOLIS is preparing to build a home for homeless boys of that city.

THE next thing of great importance in our city is the Christian Endeavor convention. It promises to be the largest convention ever held in Indiana.

A REMARKABLE man is John Kingsley of Lost Creek, Center township, Kentucky. On Sunday last his sixth wife presented him with his sixty-first child. Of these fifty are living and forty-six are married.

UNCLE PHILETUS SAWYER wanted it distinctly understood that his wallet was a factor in the Wisconsin fight. Now that the fight is over Uncle Philetus, like all the other boodlers, is trying to find out what hit him.

MR. GLADSTONE still adheres to his life long habit of rising about 5:30 daily—an hour that most other great men of the period would consider unconscionably early for getting up. He and Mrs. Gladstone attend church every morning.

A NUMBER of directors of the world's fair are making an effort to once more open the settled question of whether the world's fair shall be open on Sunday. We hope, for the good of our country, this question will be dropped. The people of America do not want the world's fair open on the Lord's day.

Now that the Garfield park gang of toughs and gamblers have been driven from Chicago, they have moved over the line into Indiana and built a race track near a small town called Robey. We hope the proper authorities will look into this matter and drive these foul beings, who were too tough for Chicago, and that's putting it pretty strong, out of our state. We have no use for such people.

THE civil service commission has requisitions for thirty-seven teachers and nine physicians, both male and female, for the Indian service, which it has not been able to fill because there are not eligible applicants enough to meet the demand. Those who desire to apply for examination should write to the commission at Washington, D. C., at once, and procure an application blank and a pamphlet of instructions. Most of those who have passed the examinations heretofore have received appointments. The next examination will be at Indianapolis, Wednesday, November 23, 1892.

HERE is an idea worth working up. A writer in the Century Magazine urges the establishment everywhere of housekeeping schools and describes "how the teaching of domestic economy was taken up in Belgium and systematized with a view of ameliorating the poor man's dwelling and how the state entrusted the organization of the scheme to a committee composed of the highest ladies of the land." The results have been admirable in Belgium. The graduates of the housekeeping schools are competent housekeepers. Not only so, this technical training has put honor upon the calling. Domestic service is dignified. It is educated into a "higher education" for women of the humbler class. "Certificated domestics" are as much in demand as are certificated nurses or governesses.

Matrimonial Blunders.

Of all the mistakes that were ever made since the first and most disastrous blunder in the garden of Eden, there has never been anything more fraught with mischief and unhappiness to the human family than a marriage entered into simply because somebody desired it. To marry for such reason alone is a sort of moral suicide, and those who are guilty of such folly sometimes live to repent it most bitterly and oftentimes die by their own hands because they know of no other way in which to right the wrong they have unwittingly done. In the opinion of the New York Ledger it may be questioned whether it is not much more injudicious to urge marriages than to prevent them. In the one case, the wretchedness may be slower in coming, but it is none the less sure and far-reaching in its evil effects. It takes a vast deal of grace for people to live together in harmony the year in and the year out, and there must be some natural attraction or something more than somebody's whim or convenience to keep things even and preserve that unity and sympathetic consideration that are absolutely necessary to make home-life worth the living. Therefore, whatever else you do, never urge a marriage. Marriage is one of the things that must be desired, and that ardently, by the contracting parties. No one has a right to interfere, and to do so is to multiply sorrows for those whose affairs are meddled with in this way.

Treasures of the Nation.

A big chest, which is to be the repository of the World's Columbian exposition of priceless documental treasures of the nation, is being made in Rochester, N. Y. To its care will be committed the original declaration of independence, the original draft made by Thomas Jefferson, the constitution of the United States, which has never before left the state department at Washington since it was first deposited there, and other valuable and historical legal documents. The chest in height is ten feet, it is three feet six inches broad and about as deep, and is made of highly wrought gray steel. A shelf lined with velvet is placed below the lower drawers. The chest will be sent to Washington and there supplied with plate glass so that the curious may catch a glimpse of the documents. Then a special car will be provided, and under a guard composed of several army officers it will be taken to the fair.

IN respect to the moneyed men of America a California exchange has this to say: "In our search for millionaires we will first look among the farming classes, as they constitute the largest number of workers and are the principal producers of wealth. Do we find them? Is there a considerable proportion of farmers who have become millionaires? No. There is not. We may search diligently and would find but a few instances of men who have made a million in any ordinary farming enterprise. Men have made millions by securing large tracts of cheap land, especially of government lands, by fraudulent entries or by collusion of dishonest government agents, and holding for advanced values; by herding large flocks of cattle or sheep upon the public domain, and in some western states by growing grain on an extended scale."

SOME of the brightest, most inventive minds of the day have long studied over the question of a cheap, clean fuel. Now and then some one would think he had succeeded in solving the question, but there has always been some point not considered that would doom it to failure. But at last, according to a scientific authority, a process has been discovered, and the result is a perfect fuel which will burn anywhere, without reference to draught. This fuel is appropriately called carbonite, being almost pure carbon. It sends forth no gases, and is, therefore, safe and wholesome. Physicians indorse it, as it is particularly adapted to the requirements of the sickroom, where an even temperature is necessary.

PET hens have supplanted the pampered poodles of the fad-following women of New York. The hen-pet craze is of very recent origin, but it already shows signs of utterly routing the semi-animated mop that feminine fashionables have been carrying around in their laps. Of the two there is a trifle of advantage in the more recent form of nonsense.

THE perpendicularity of a monument, according to a reliable authority, is visibly affected by the rays of the sun. On every sunny day a tall monument has a regular swing leading away from the sun. This phenomenon is due to the greater expansion of the side on which the rays of the sun fall.

THE first double-deck twin screw ferry boat in use in the United States is the Cincinnati, which runs over the Pennsylvania railroad ferry from Jersey City to New York. She is two hundred and six feet long, forty-six feet wide, and makes twelve miles an hour.

THE girl of the period now disfigures her arm with a tattooed picture of the Santa Maria, the ship in which Columbus sailed to America. This is the latest, and beyond question the most foolish, fad that has struck the modern young woman.

OVER two hundred street railroads are now operated by means of electricity. This retires thousands of poor, broken-down horses from lives of misery.

Meaning of the Word "Toilette."

"Toilette" is a diminutive of "toile," a small covering of linen thrown over a dressing table, but it was reserved for the decorators of the reign of Louis XV. to discriminate between the grand and little toilette. The latter was a very simple arrangement, indeed, a plain wooden altar with unadorned white napery and a looking-glass, at which the celebrants were only the lady's maid and the hair dresser. The grand toilet was a much more splendid affair. The table was laden with coffers of jewels, glove boxes, powder boxes, receptacles for paint, patches, pomatum, and scented waters, and finally, with the dressing case, the furniture of which was often of gold or silver, handsomely chased.—Detroit Free Press.

A Fact of Interest.

An observation recounted in the recent census reports of France deserves attention here. Thirty departments, or nearly forty per cent. of the territory of France, have lost eighty thousand inhabitants, or about one per cent. of their population, since the census taken a quarter of a century ago. In these thirty departments great ravages were committed in the forests, immense quantities of timber having been felled and sold. "If the hills have no trees," says the report, "the valleys can have no men." Bare hills allow the rivers to flood the country, inundating the fields and carrying off the crops, cattle and homesteads. The inhabitants, left starving, have to perish on the spot or emigrate. Thus, destruction of forests means depopulation of the country. Central Asia, once depopulated, is recovering because the Russians have commenced tree-planting on a large scale. The other parts of Asia and Europe where the forests were destroyed are lying waste. Will the American government learn a lesson from these facts?

Our Women Getting Taller.

A scientific man who has been talking to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter is certain that the women of this country are growing taller. This is especially true, he says, of the women of the great middle class. The tall girl is not so plentiful among the plutocrats and the very poor, but a majority of those young ladies whose parents are in comfortable circumstances are above the medium height. "My theory is that the growth of the very poor is stunted by bad food and hard work, and that of the very rich by a surfeiting and lack of proper exercise. The middle-class girl has plenty of wholesome food, and is required to lead a moderately active life. The result is that she grows up tall and graceful, with the easy carriage of an athlete. I believe that the young ladies of to-day will average an inch taller than their mothers. The men of America are also growing taller, but the advance is not so marked as in the case of young ladies. I attribute this backwardness to the very general use of tobacco or liquor, or both, by the boys of America."

Rapid Railroading.

A paragraph went the rounds of the press a few weeks ago concerning the feat accomplished by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in running a special grain train through from Chicago to Jersey City without uncoupling a car or changing locomotives. The undertaking being the first of its kind naturally excited a great deal of interest, and the transportation department of the railway company named has compiled the following facts and figures which lend an added interest: "A distance of 821 miles was traversed, during which time the locomotive was not uncoupled from the train. The total length of the train was 1,602 feet and it carried 2,040,000 pounds of grain, an average of 68,000 pounds to each car. The locomotive and cars were equipped throughout with Westinghouse brakes. The engine was No. 263, standard, class R. The locomotive and tender weighed 88,500 pounds."

LEAF gatherers are said to be so numerous in the parks of New York city and environs as actually to render it unnecessary to rake up and pile the foliage for burning after it has fallen to the ground. This sounds absurd, but it is nevertheless true at many of those localities, as is shown in the baskets and bags full of leaves carried away daily by tourists to those localities, many of whom make a business of preparing leaves for books, the sale of which is a profitable commerce in that city, some of the rare specimens of which are exported to Europe, selling there at great profit. Business has an eye to opportunities in which indifferent people cannot see benefit nor profit.

THE maid servants' vacation has become a common enough thing of late years, especially among colored servants, who, with the easy irresponsibility and indolent philosophy of their race, not unfrequently quit work when they have saved a few dollars and enjoy a month's idleness among their friends. Many of them travel hundreds of miles southward on their vacations and accept the generous hospitality of friends no better off than themselves. It is not unusual in the south to find a colored family in a small cabin entertaining for weeks together half a dozen visiting friends.

AN Easton (Pa.) girl is as accurate a weather gauge as the barometer. When storms are brewing her hair curls in tight ringlets and she grows so obstreperous that teachers are unable to subdue her. The approach of sunny weather smooths down her spirits and she is then the sweetest-tempered girl in school. Many doctors have tried in vain to solve the riddle of her ailment.

DOWN in Stonington, Conn., they are reviving the old Puritan blue laws, and placards advertising dire penalties for swearing are being posted about by the town warden. When a town gets so bad that that has to be done it's about time to move out or else roof one's house with asbestos and stay in out of the sulphurous rain to come.

A CIGARETTE stump carelessly thrown into a waste basket of paper started a fire recently which destroyed the town of Delmore, Del., and by which one fireman lost his life, several persons were injured and three hundred people were rendered homeless.

A LITTLE PARABLE.

I made the cross myself, whose weight
  Was later laid on me,
This thought adds anguish as I toil
  Up life's steep Calvary.

To think mine own hands drove the nails!
  I sang a merry song!
And chose the heaviest wood I had
  To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed
  Its weight was meant for me,
I should have built a lighter cross
  To bear up Calvary!

—Anne Reeve Aldrich in Scribner's.

THE SPECTRAL BOAT.

This story is true so far as the narrator's responsibility is concerned. By the narrator I mean the pilot. His name is Kinney, pilot of the Baton Rouge. The Baton Rouge was the "swift, elegant steamer (Bixby master, Elton purser)" plying between St. Louis and New Orleans.

I went aboard the Baton Rouge at St. Louis. Bixby introduced me to Kinney. In Kinney I found a short, thick-bodied man with half gray and blue eyes, tawny colored mustache, a goatee, full cheeks, ruddy with health, and the natural color of one whose hair was mixed red and brown.

Kinney stood watch six hours off and six hours at the wheel. He knew the historical points of the river, and he pointed them out one after another.

Kinney turned his wheel with a spasmodic violence and rang the engineer's bells to "slow port" to "fast starboard" and reversed his orders with such rapidity that the mechanic below wanted, by the infernal, to know what he meant. Presently we rounded the bend.

"See that corner of the island there?" asked Kinney.

"Yes."

"There's where the bones of the old Alonzo Childs are laid."

"Well?"

"Mark Twain had his license on that boat. She was taken in the days of the war and run by the Confederates, and Clemens was her pilot. After he had left her and joined the Confederate army, the machinery, or so much of it as was any good, was taken out, and her hull passed into possession of an old chap that owned a plantation just 'round Bayou Sara, below here. He had a land boiler and engine, and used it for boiling sugar and pressing cane. Colonel Hubbard burned the sugar-house as he passed by with his detachment of soldiers, but the boiler and engine was saved in a somewhat disturbed condition. The old fellow's name was De Soto.

"De Soto put his old engine and boiler on the hull of the Alonzo Childs and she was made to travel up and down, inside the Confederate lines, of course. She went between Port Hudson and Vicksburg. At that time I was a 'cub' pilot on a big steamer, and I used to see her. One day I heard she exploded or snagged, and everybody on board was lost. The circumstances of the disaster no one ever knew. A few bloated bodies and some charred pieces of the old craft's timbers floating down the river indicated the extent of the horror.

"Two years ago I was standing watching alone in the pilot house. The river was up and we were pushing the gray, muddy waters aside under a full head of steam. I had just pulled the wheel over to make the bend, when I saw a steamer heading straight for us. It appeared to me that she came out of the bank rather than up the river, and I noticed at the moment that she was a strange craft to me. Well, I blowed once to pass to port and steered off to the west shore. Giving her the advantage of the backwater, I watched her, and presently I saw from her whistle two escapes of steam. By that I saw that she had blown twice, although I had not heard the blasts. So I blew twice and reversed my helm.

"Still she came on. Do you know I thought she was some up-river boat or Pittsburger, thinking she owned the earth, and pushin me round so her pilots could tell midwinter yarns about how they had made it hot for a big New Orleans and St. Louis packet? I whistled again. No answer, and she came headin' right for us and gettin' so near that the danger of a smash was imminent. I blew an alarm blast and stopped, and as she came nearer, bidding fair to strike us just forward of the starboard wheel, I rang the bell to back hard. In the second of interval necessary to reverse the engine I looked at the approaching craft and noted that her speed was terrific and that she made no sound. I closed my eyes for a moment in order that my sight should not interfere with my ears. There was no noise of escaping steam, no beat of paddle wheels. I opened them again. She was upon us, and, with a bare thought of the passengers below—my own family—I closed them again.

"In that second of mental agony I heard the piano down in the main saloon. Somebody was playing 'Natalie, the Maid of the Mill.' I heard the discord, which I know must have been occasioned by the first alarm of danger—the sweep of the hand over the keys as the player turned suddenly from the piano. I grew old and lived twenty years. I never thought of escape. I could not have escaped had I so chosen. My senses were so alert as to give me a physical pain.

"I opened my eyes a second afterward and there was no boat. Nothing in sight. Only a blank spread of water, a fast-flowing current and our own boat backing at full speed, while Captain Dixby was yelling from the hurricane deck:

"'What in the blazes is the matter?'

"I don't know how I recovered myself, but I did tell him some way or other that the bell rope had got tangled. I started her ahead then. Now, that was in the afternoon at 4 o'clock—and tell me there ain't ghosts?"

"I have never failed to see her when I passed here within two hours of the hour of 4 o'clock, morning, or evening. Here comes my relief for dinner. Had yours? No. Sit at my table. It's nearly 4, and as we are about to stop to 'wood up' before we round the bend, may be you will see the ghost of a steamer yourself. Seein's believin'."

Just then the speaking tube from the captain's office was sounded, and I heard the hollow, reverberating tone of Bixby's voice through fifty feet of tin pipe saying one of the cylinders needed repacking and we would stay at the woodpile where we were till it was done.

"That means ten hours, anyway," said Kinney. "Thank God, we will get by the bend about midnight."

Ten hours did not measure the time of our delay, and I was sleeping oblivious of ghosts and regardless of Kinney's spook steamboat, when a sharp rap at my stateroom door brought me out of dreamless slumber.

"Mr. Kinney says, 'Would you all please, sir, come into the pilot house?'"

It was the voice of the nightwatch speaking to me as an individual and assuring me that none of myself was neglected. Giving a hasty affirmative, I arose and hurried to the hurricane deck.

"I say," he said, "it's nearly 4 o'clock, and we are going to pass the wreck. You wanted to see the ghost of a steamboat. I don't want to be alone and I want a skeptic with me. Light your pipe and sit down."

Kinney hove the wheel over to port, and the jackstaff of the boat could be seen, as the "night hawk" swung for the pilot's eye to sweep the horizon, cut away such rays of light as penetrated the cottonwood forests on the Louisiana shore.

"I don't see her," said Kinney, turning his night glass one way and another, "and it's ten minutes to 4."

"Don't see what?" inquired a strange voice at my side, and turning in surprise, for I had not heard any one enter, I could define in the half-gray light of the morning the figure of a man with smoothly shaven face—apparently a youth.

"The ghost," said Kinney, still peering into the space beyond.

"Do you expect any?" asked the stranger.

"Why, I was just telling you—great God there she is!"

I looked in the direction he pointed, and sure enough, about a quarter of a mile away were the red and green lights of an approaching steamer. I knew enough of the laws of the road on water to comprehend that she was coming toward us, and I could also see she was making tremendous headway. Kinney's eye's as I saw them flash were fixed upon her. He neither moved the wheel nor stirred a hand to give warning.

"Kinney," I cried, "that is not the ghost; it is a steamer. It is the White of the Vicksburg line, bound up. She is to pass here about this time. For the love of heaven, give the signal!"

At such a time one scarcely knows what he says or does. The two great vessels, each of them moving at the rate of fourteen or fifteen miles an hour, seemed doomed to crash upon each other. I knew the White was, ordinarily, filled with passengers. On our own boat were nearly 200 souls.

I tried to wrest the wheel from him; but a strong arm swept us both aside, and the stranger seized the spokes. There was a jingling of bells, a screeching of whistles, a mad cry of human voices, a leaping of flames over light woodwork that cracked and seemed to laugh with joy over the destruction that was being wrought.

But over it all I heard one voice in articulate agony, whose wild, agonizing accents I shall never forget. Then, in the flash of flame, I saw the face of the person who had uttered it. It was the stranger at the wheel. On his cap band, spelled out in letters of gold bullion, were the words, "Pilot, Alonzo Childs." He was illumined by the blaze and his eyes shown brighter than the fire itself.

"I am punished! My God, is it not enough? I was her pilot! It is the Alonzo Childs!" he screamed.

For a second he towered, like a giant, high over the eight-foot wheel; then, throwing his arms about his head, he fell prone upon the floor. Already the glass windows of the pilot house were cracking with the heat. I knelt beside the prostrate form. There was no heart-beat.

I looked up at Kinney. He was standing with his arms folded, his face perfectly calm, but pale as death.

At that moment the flames burst into the pilot house, and their hot breath blistered my hands as I held them before my eyes. I had no feeling of fear beyond apprehension of physical pain. Death had no terror for me. Besides, there was no escape. I remember just then that Kinney shook me by the arm, and I heard his voice:

"Say, you will set yourself afire in a minute."

I opened my eyes. The steamer Baton Rouge, Bixby master, Elton clerk, was having quick dispatch, and my after-dinner pipe lay smoking on my knee. Some of its live ashes were on the floor and some had burned my hand just a little, and Kinney said I had been asleep less than two minutes.—R. R., in New York News.

BULL MASTIFF AND SERPENT.

A Battle in Which the Snake Came Off Second Best.

A most exciting fight between a bull mastiff and a snake about four feet five inches long, apparently of the dhamin species, was witnessed early one morning by a number of persons residing in a house in Entally, says the Indian Daily News. The gentleman in whose house the occurrence took place keeps a large poultry yard, and the snake, intending no doubt to make a meal of one of the fowls or ducks, was stealthily crawling into the yard when the birds, scenting an enemy, began to crow and cackle and flutter about in their alarm.

The snake had just caught a duck when the bull mastiff, attracted by the noise, came running to the spot, sprang upon the snake and seized it close to the head. Acting on the defensive now the snake released the duck, and, coiling itself round its antagonist, endeavored to crush it. It compelled the dog to roll over, but the latter refused to quit his hold, while with his hind paws he struggled to tear the coils off him. This he partly succeeded in doing and regained his feet, but the reptile once more coiled round him, and it appeared now as if the dog would be strangled, the folds of the snake forming a double ring round his neck.

The wriggling of the snake and the frantic struggle of the dog were now almost terrible, and were all the more intensely watched from the fact that no help could be rendered to the plucky dog, who never relaxed his grip. Both combatants rolled over a second time, and continued struggling for fully five minutes, while the dog pawed up the ground all round, and at last managed to make a slit about a span long in the skin of the snake by means of his claws. This was the beginning of the end. The dog once more threw off the coils and rose to his feet. Releasing his grip for a moment, he made a dash at the head of the snake and completely crushed it. Having disabled the snake so far, he tore the snake's body till the reptile was disemboweled. After a severe contest extending over a quarter of an hour the brave dog gained a complete victory. Strange to relate, the mastiff, with the exception of a large swelling in the inside of his mouth, sustained no injury, and appears to be doing well.

Simple Method of Removing Wrinkles

It is easier to remove wrinkles than to eradicate any other defect of the face and yet we daily see many faces, otherwise beautiful, rendered prematurely old by that shrinkage of the tissue we call wrinkles. A simple, but positive, treatment is Marquard's Rose Cream, which not only disperses wrinkles speedily but also removes pimples, blotches, eruptions and lends an exquisite glow and transparency to the complexion. "Gentlemen: For the benefit of suffering humanity I wish to state a few facts: For several years I have suffered from catarrh and heart failure, getting so bad I could not work and

Could Scarcely Walk

I had a very bad spell of paralysis of the throat some time ago. My throat seemed closed and I could not swallow. The doctors said it was caused by heart failure, and gave medicine, which I took according to directions, but it did not seem to do me any good. My wife urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, telling me of Mr. Joseph C. Smith, who had been

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

The Bass Company Preparing to Make Heavy Shipments.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centers.

This is to be the banner shipping week at the Bass works. Five large engines, boilers and their attachments will leave that establishment. The shipments will be as follows: One engine and boiler to Springfield, Ohio; size of cylinder, 20 by 42. One to Conneaut, Ohio, for the Nickel Plate shops; cylinder 14 by 30. One to Chicago; engine cylinder, 16 by 42. One to East Chicago for a rolling mill company; cylinder 20 by 30. One to New Castle, Pa., for the Tin Plate and Wire Nail company. This is the largest engine of the lot, and it will make four car loads. The Bass company today received orders from Mexico for two large engines and boilers, one to be shipped to Lerdo and the other to Montery. Work on these orders will be crowded through as fast as possible and an effort will be made to get the shipment into Mexico before January 1, when the Mexican tariff law, placing heavy duties on such importations, goes into effect. The outlook at the Bass works was never more encouraging than at the present time.

BRIEF MENTION.

A. C. Beaver, the lumber merchant, is at LaOtto today.

George Geerken, a boiler maker, is kept from his work by sickness.

P. Titus, T. F. Drake and J. H. Kellogg, Pittsburg engineers, are sick and off duty.

Foreman Campbell, of the Wabash blacksmith shop, has returned from a hunting expedition.

Engineer T. Dyer is on duty again after a siege with sore eyes. He has a run on the Pittsburg.

Homer Axter, machinist at the Wabash shops, is suffering with sore throat and is not at his work.

Boilermaker R. Mullen resumed his work in the Pittsburg shops this morning, after a week's illness.

Fireman T. Young reported for duty this morning, after an illness. He is employed on the Pittsburg road.

Conductor Mauk, of the Pittsburg, who has been off duty a week, expects to return to work in a day of two.

Fred Lentz, the springmaker in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, was taken ill this morning and had to go home.

Clif. Hoosier, of the Pittsburg car shop, stepped upon a banana peel Sunday, and now suffers with a badly sprained arm.

Full one-half of the great extent of railway mileage in the United States has been construced during the last twelve years.

Pittsburg Engineers L. Sweeney and B. F. Thompson have recovered from their recent illness and this morning reported for duty.

The smallest coal-burning locomotive, five feet long, was built by Charles D. Young, a twelve-year-old Denver boy. It weighs 235 pounds.

Brakeman Williams, of the Nickel Plate, is entertaining his sister, who resides in Ohio, and who he has not seen for a number of years.

W. Swart and W. Doty, Pittsburg engineers who were off duty on account of sickness in their families, returned to their work this morning.

John T. Leach started out this morning on the semi-annual inspection tour of all the water station boilers along the Pittsburg road, between Chicago and Crestline.

Daniel Miller, formerly a Pleasant township farmer, has taken a position as fireman on the Nickel Plate. He was sent to Stony Island, where he will do service in the yards for awhile. Mr. Miller is a brother of Frank X., the the Pittsburg blacksmith, and Andrew, who is firing on the Crestline accommodation.

Fireman James Elliott, of the Nickel Plate, is sick.

Engineer N. F. Fields is sick. He is employed on the Nickel Plate.

W. D. Miller reported for duty today as engineer on the Nickel Plate.

Coony Norwald, of the Pittsburg planing mills, is sick and off duty.

Engineer George Rohlman, of the Nickel Plate, is enjoying a vacation.

Frank Weigand is on the sick list. He works for Rhinesmith & Simonson.

A. J. You reported for duty this morning. He is an engineer on the Nickel Plate.

Justus Lee, a Nickel Plate round house laborer, has returned from a visit to Cleveland.

Engineer George Dunan, of the Nickel Plate, has returned from a few days' visit in Chicago.

Conductor Smith, of the Nickel Plate, has reported for duty after a vacation of several weeks.

C. H. VanGorder, the Nickel Plate engineer, is agent for Van Nostrand's books for railroad men.

A. S. Work, road foreman of engineers of the Nickel Plate, has returned from Stony Island.

Henry Short, a conductor on the Nickel Plate, has recovered from his recent sickness and resumed work.

Charlie Turner, clerk in the Pittsburg lumber yard office, is suffering with a fever. His condition is critical.

Charles Davidson, the Nickel Plate firemen had to abandon his run here Saturday and go back to Stony Island.

Henry Mennewish, a heater in the Bass blacksmith shop, returned to his work this morning after an absence of two months.

The new engine, the third now in operation, was set in motion at the power station of the street car company last night.

W. Goers and Lee Ballard, who were among the suspended men at the Pittsburg paint shop some months ago, were reinstated last week.

P. Schoppman and Con Graney, boilermakers at the Bass works, have returned from Van Wert, where they were doing some work for the firm.

Conductor Anderson, of the Nickel Plate, who had his shoulder bone broken in a collision a week ago, is now quite comfortable, the knitting pains having ended.

Most of the freight moving northeast and westward now consists of grapes and general merchandise. Grain is too cheap in the east to be shipped in large quantities.

West-bound freight is very heavy at present. The Pittsburg is keeping its trainmen very busy and the extra crews have no cause for complaint on account of lack of business.

The anticipated trouble on the Reading railroad on account of the discharge of union men was satisfactorily compromised by Chief Arthur and other brotherhood railroad men's officials.

Saturday last the Electric Light company shipped a thirty-five arc light plant to Georgetown, Ky. Today the firm sent 120 lights to Buffalo, N. Y., to increase the plant already in operation.

John Rost resumed his old position in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning, after an absence of two months. Last week he returned from Germany and the scenes of his boyhood days.

Fred Rogge, of Car Inspector Stapleford's force at the Nickel Plate yards, is having a serious time with his arm, which was Saturday so badly swollen as to require lancing. He bruised it some weeks ago.

No. 5. was delayed two hours this morning by a freight wreck east of Lima. The train went around the wreck by way of Kenton, Ohio, leaving the Pittsburg road at Forest and striking it again at Lima.

A freight car thirty-six feet long has been built of steel in Manchester for the Mexican railway company. It is heavier than a thirty-four foot wooden car and will hold nearly three times as much with no more dead weight.

Arthur Dougal, Gene Knight and Arthur Hadley, of the electric light works, are working under great difficulties today. The boys are members of the foot ball team, and have not yet recovered from their defeat at Lima, O.

Conductor L. M. Blakesley, who has been at the bedside of a sick relative in Chicago for a week, resumed his run on the Pittsburg today. During his absence Conductor Joseph Morgan had charge of Mr. Blakesley's trains, Nos. 22 and 25.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hurley will be pained to learn that their bright ten-year-old boy is very ill with typhoid pneumonia, and but little hopes of his recovery are entertained. Mr. Hurley is assistant foreman of the Pittsburg boiler shop.

James Woodworth has returned to the city and will probably take a position in the Pittsburg boiler shop. For some months he was foreman of the Big Four boiler shops at Wabash, but last week Mr. McCoy, the old foreman returned and Mr. Woodworth resigned in his favor.

The Nickel Plate company is increasing its shop facilities at Coneaut, Ohio, and a large engine for that purpose is now ready for shipment at the Bass works. This settles the question of the removal of the shops to this city, which was agitated some months ago. Our only hope now is to secure the Stony Island shops.

The weekly report at the Pittsburg machine shop shows as follows: Out, engines 314, 157 and 230, the latter a new class R. Taken in for repairs: Engines 31 and 227. A new class R, No. 243, was also taken in hand and is due to go out the latter part of next week. There are now seven engines in the shop for repairs.

Capt R. H. Harrison resumed charge of the iron machine room at the Pittsburg shops this morning, after a sickness of several weeks. The captain is greatly disappointed by the result of the election, being a republican. He stated to a SENTINEL reporter this morning that "the result of the election goes to show that officeholders cannot force a ticket upon the party and elect it."

EXCITING EXPERIENCES.

Two Hunters Go Out Too Early and Are Badly Disgusted.

A few days ago two young men of this city took a hunting trip. After looking over their stock of ammunition and regalia suitable for the occasion, each one securing for himself a pair of rubber hip boots. One said to the other: "Where will we go?" After naming over a number of places noted for game they decided to take the early morning train, which leaves here about 3:30, for Prairie Switch, a place noted for a switch and two lights. They arrived in good time—about two hours before daylight. The night was dark and raining. The first thing that came to their observation after their arrival was the switch-light. After looking at the light a moment the elder hunter said to the younger: "What light is that?" After a few moments of serious reflection the senior member said: "Let's go home." But the junior member being determined not to give up the hunt, they searched for a farm house and sought shelter from the dripping rain. Now the question arose as to which was the proper way to go—to turn to the right or to the left.

They turned to the right. The first obstruction was a gate which the senior member tried to break down by coming in contact with it in the dark. The next encounter was the Little river ditch. Now, both being equipped with rubber hip-boots, they attempted to wade across. When they struck the bed of the ditch, instead of being water, as they supposed, it was dry and the bed of white clay, resembling water in the dark. Wandering through field and lane, next in their way were several hay stacks. The one said to the other: Let's dig in one of the stacks and wait for day light. But digging in wet hay stacks was up-hill business and they concluded to move on. Finally they reached the barn yard. After tumbling over straw stacks and falling over cattle they concluded to go into the barn and wait for daylight. About the time they were comfortably situated in the haymow the farmer's watch dog spyed the intruders and about the same time the intruders spyed the watch dog. Out they went, pell mell, and left the watch dog monarch of all he surveyed.

The rats were left to feast on the lunch the good wife and mother had prepared for the Nimrods. Taking into consideration the predicament they were placed in they concluded to flag the next train for Fort Wayne and so they returned, weaker and wiser, congratulating themselves over the amount of game they did (not) get.

A HANDSOME BONNET.

The Sort of Thing Which London Ladies Are Wearing.

[Special Correspondence.]

A very becoming bonnet has the crown of handsome gold embroidery very thick and close, and shaped like a real crown, being raised here and there at regular intervals. The brim consists entirely of fluted lace in black and gold, the folds resting on the hair without intervening brim of velvet or lace. The effect is very good, especially when a pretty forehead fringe is worn. A narrow folded piece of bright orange velvet, such as one sees in some nasturtiums, forms a trimming round the crown, arranged in knots that make it look like flowers. Three black ostrich tips are arranged at the back, two being erect and one drooping over the back upon the hair.

American Cholera.

From the Daily Reveille, Whatcom, Wash.

"T. C. Burnett, the democratic candidate for sheriff, was taken violently ill at Clearbrook. He had all the symptoms of Asiatic cholera, and for an hour or two it was feared he would die. They finally gave him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which revived him until a physician arrived." That is precisely what the manufacturers of that medicine recommend for cholera. Send for a physician, but give their medicine until the physician arrives. If cholera becomes prevalent in this country next summer this preparation will be in great demand, because it can always be depended upon. For sale by druggists.

Cotton in China.

After several years of struggle cotton spinning of Chinese cotton by Chinese hands is established in Shanghai. Five hundred and fifty looms and 21,000 spindles turn out weekly 130,000 yards, thirty-six inches wide, of a superior quality of imitation American drill sheeting. Half the looms are of English make and half of American.

Reversible Snakes in India.

A snake not often heard of, at least in America, is the liver-colored snake with two heads or perhaps they should be called mouths, though it does not have two mouths at the same time. They are reversible mouths, occupying the opposite end every six months. It lies with the two ends crossed on each other, as with folded hands. Every six months the change of the seasons reverses the functions of the two ends, the head becoming the tail and the tail becoming the head. The mouth at one end heals, or closes up all but a small opening, while the opposite end becomes the mouth for the next six months.

A friend of mine in India who told me about this remarkable snake said he refused for a long time to believe that the functions of the two ends were reversed every six months, but one day he found one of these snakes in the jungle and carried it home, where he had a physician examine it. The result was the physician confirmed the stories of the creature and my friend was skeptical no longer. I learned no other name for this singular reptile than that of "the liver-colored snake."—Hartford Times.

Are They Dangerous

—the imitations of Pearline? How are you going to find out? A few washings with them won't show any damage. It's only after some months, when your clothes go to pieces suddenly, that the danger can be seen and proved. Are you willing to risk your own clothes in the experiment?

It is better to be sure that you are safe, by using the original washing compound—Pearline. All the others are founded upon that. Will it pay to use these imitations? Figure up all that they may offer—prize packages, cheap prices, or whatever it may be—and put it against what you may lose.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 306 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Iron Giant, The Man that Walks by Steam!

Pronounced by Rev. [illegible] Public [illegible] Greatest Invention of the Age. After several years of close study and experimenting and at an enormous expenditure of money and time, Prof. Moore has succeeded in perfecting what has hitherto been considered impossible. A Man that Walks by Steam, completed September 1st, '91, by Prof. G. Moore, of Hamilton, Ont., Canada. This wonderful machine imitates the motions of the human body with an accuracy and grace, combined with all the strength and power derived from steam. It is capable of walking or running, and will draw or propel immense loads with the ease and rapidity of a steam engine. This Steam Man is 6 feet, 10½ inches high, and embraces within its own structure the entire motive power by which it is governed. It is altogether different to anything of the kind ever before manufactured or exhibited, and will well repay inspection by those interested in the skillful application of the great motor, steam, to the mechanism of the present day in a new and instructive manner.

ONE of the papers published in London has adopted the plan of displaying from its building three times each day the signals which tell what kind of weather is predicted by the meteorological bureau. Also it keeps on hand in the office a supply of cards which may be had for the asking by persons who do not know what the signals mean but want to understand them. The average Londoner who goes past that office has only to look up in order to tell whether or not it is advisable to carry an umbrella, and the only fault in the arrangement consists in the fact that he has already left home when he sees the signal.

THE heroic soul does not sell its justice and its nobleness. It does not ask to dine nicely and to sleep warm. The essence of greatness is the perception that virtue is enough. Poverty is its ornament. It does not need plenty, and can very well abide its loss.

STATE NEWS.

Huntington kicks bitterly against the quality and quantity of artificial gas furnished consumers.

J. P. Johnson, of Laporte, wholesale jeweler, has made an assignment with R. E. Morrison assignee. Liabilities are placed at $30,000, with assets not stated.

George Patterson, a guard at the prison north, took a prisoner to Huntington to be used as a witness, and while standing on the street he was assaulted by a stranger, who stunned him with a club.

W. C. Greene, of Richmond, and Mrs. Laura Eddings, of Springfield, O., are married. It is alleged that Mrs. Eddings was convicted of killing her first husband and was pardoned by the governor of Ohio.

Eva Fruits, ten years old, of Brookville, was bitten through the arm by a mad dog, and the brute was followed by the father of the child and killed. The little girl has been taken to Cleves, Ohio, for the application of a mad stone.

An inter-locking switch derailed a Chicago and Erie engine at North Judson. Stephen Mainard, engineer, jumped and escaped serious injury, but M. Garrison, fireman, was pinned underneath the overturned engine and fatally hurt.

Silver has been discovered in St. Joseph county. Workmen engaged in driving a well on the farm of Hon. Chris. Moller, near Crumstown, a few miles west of Valparaiso, at the depth of 106 feet, brought to the surface ore which is pronounced silver. It is not known how rich the find may prove.

A gas well on the Storms farm, near Montpelier, which has been supplying that community for some time, suddenly began flowing oil which percolated through the pipes and made its appearance in the houses of patrons. The village of Dundee, supplied from this source, was compelled to discontinue its public schools until other provisions can be made.

Two confidence operators, one of them representing himself as a nephew of Nelson Bradley, president of the Greenfield bank, played the usual game on Jacob Catt, a wealthy farmer living a short distance from Greenfield. They represented that they held $10,000 in government bonds which they wanted to invest, and Mr. Catt was eager to trade. Then the third party came into sight, a three-card monte game was introduced, and Mr. Catt soon found himself a heavy winner, but he was forbidden his share of the money until he had shown his ability financially to stand a possible strain. Mr. Catt then checked out $4,500, there was an exchange, just how he doesn't know, and returned to bank with a box containing, as he supposed, $15,000, but which only held an old magazine. Mr. Catt was cautioned when he checked out the money to have no dealings with gold brick or any other class of swindlers, but he knew his business. The swindlers left him to drive to Maxwell, but they failed to reach that point, and all trace of them has been lost.
